

COVID-19 STATEMENT

QED has responded to the Coronavirus situation by moving all our services online. Using a combination of E-learning and video conferencing platforms we can deliver everything without risk to our customers or ourselves. This includes our ILM qualification programmes as well as Individual Coaching and Bespoke Training services.

Coaching is a perfect tool for leaders and managers to use to enable their staff to continue to operate effectively during this challenging time. A coaching approach respects and responds to each individual's needs and concerns whilst providing a space for positive thinking and action. We are helping our clients to adapt and respond to change and support their staff to navigate these uncertain times.

Across our services we will be creating an environment where everyone can explore the current challenges and find positive, creative and practical ways forward.

Stay safe and well, connect with those that matter, this time will pass, Julia Miles MD Quality Education and Development